

How Venus in Cancer Relates to a Partner with Venus in Scorpio:

This is considered a very easy pairing compared to others because both of your Venus signs are in water. A similar—and familiar—vein to the quality of your expressions of love that will draw you to one another and make you both feel “at home”. Both of you take commitment very seriously, and neither of you is frivolous with your feelings and expressions. Your warmth and caring nature will feel completely regenerating to your partner, and you instinctually sense an all-encompassing love in your lover, that totally appeals to you. At times, that love can feel all-consuming, but this doesn’t scare you like it would with some other lover. In fact, the love you both give is the same, and your Venus in Scorpio lover doesn’t fear closeness and intimacy. In fact, he lives for it! The attraction between the two of you is magnetic, deeply felt, and can withstand the test of time. Both of you tend to be possessive in love, and your memory is very powerful. Communication should always be as open as possible, as both of you can tend towards holding silent grudges. Your reaction to hurts is often internalized, while your partner can grow somewhat cold and unresponsive when he feels slighted. However, the extreme empathy and that runs between you and the connection you share can easily soften any hard angles in your relationship.
