

When your Venus is in Scorpio, it's all or nothing in matters of the heart. You are capable of loving very deeply, and you crave intimacy. Scorpio isn't afraid of anything, and when Venus, the planet of love is found in this sign, love relationships are intense. Scorpio is also a sign that thrives on diversity in order for its natives to feel alive and vital, so when it comes to matters of the heart, you are not only unafraid of getting your hands dirty, you may find an overly predictable relationship uninteresting.

Scorpios don't enjoy being referred to as "jealous", but from time to time jealousy and possessiveness could become issues in your relationships. You have a strong desire to control your intensity, and you don't always let your partner know exactly what is going on inside of you as a result. Others will be either strongly attracted to, or intimidated by your ability to give ALL to love, as well as your extraordinary passion. Your interests in love and romance can appear to border on obsessive, and you need a strong partner who is willing to go the distance with you. Sexually, you are intense as well. You definitely do not only want your partner's body—you want her mind. Sex without mental intimacy is ultimately uninteresting to you.

Be careful that your fear of possible betrayal doesn't become a self-fulfilling prophecy. When insecure about your partner's feelings about you, resorting to techniques of power and control might seem like a natural route for you, and may even get temporary desired "results", but can have disastrous consequences in the long run. Learning to let go a little and have real faith in your partner can do wonders in your relationship. When you are at your very best, you are unafraid of intimacy and can offer an extraordinary depth and passion to your relationship that is completely unmatched.